

"Passionate, well-researched."—NEW YORK TIMES BOOK REVIEW

Long known for her insightful and thought-provoking political journalism, author Elizabeth Kolbert now tackles the controversial and increasingly urgent subject of global warming. In what began as a groundbreaking three-part series in the New Yorker, for which she won a National Magazine Award in 2006, Kolbert cuts through the competing rhetoric and political agendas to elucidate what is really going on with the global environment and asks what, if anything, can be done to save our planet. Now updated and with a new afterword, Field Notes from a Catastrophe is the book to read on the greatest challenge facing the world today.

"Among the few irreplaceable volumes yet written about climate change, Kolbert offers the best summary yet."—BILL MCKIBBEN, BOSTON GLOBE

"[A] small miracle of concision, gaining by its brevity and its plan of attack a rhetorical power that elucidates, rises to meet and deftly answers the historic crisis in which we find ourselves."

—LOS ANGELES TIMES

"A measured, elegant, brief book that functions as a perfect primer on global warming. It might be the most important book you read this year."—CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER

"Important...Precise and measured...[Kolbert] lets readers connect the dots to form a frightening (and still avoidable) vision of our future...A."

—ENTERTAINMENT WEEKLY

"Sober, detailed, and alarming without being alarmist."

—NEWSWEEK

ELIZABETH KOLBERT has been a staff writer for the New Yorker since 1999. Prior to that, she was a reporter for the New York Times. She lives with her husband and three sons in Williamstown, MA.
